

Al Rayan GCC Fund (F)

March 2011

AuM: USD 9.9 million

NAV/share: QAR 0.948

Overview: After significant volatility in January and February, GCC equity markets bounced sharply in March as investors discounted reduced risk of contagion from regional politics. A further boost came from oil as Brent crude averaged almost $115/barrel over the month; several factors contributed to this including a cut in Libyan oil exports and a further slide of the US Dollar.

Regional fixed income has also rallied, with Dubai leading the way. There has been an improvement in sentiment towards Dubai and its related entities helped partly by the finalisation of a loan restructuring agreement by Dubai World and the expectation Dubai will benefit from a capital and tourism 'flight to quality' from other parts of the region.

Outlook: We continue to expect regional politics to remain in the news in the coming months but our central scenario is the GCC will not see cuts in GDP growth expectations as was seen in Egypt. In fact, higher oil prices are likely to fuel increased spending with scope for GDP upgrades in several GCC countries.

We still see 2011 as a positive year for regional equities retaining preference for Saudi Arabia and Qatar and see value emerging in the UAE. We expect GCC sukuk to continue to trade tighter. Capital preservation is critical but we expect the current environment to provide opportunities to deploy more of the fund's capital.
